NOT A VICTIM OF VIOLENCE

Death of Mrs. Donovan Due to Natural Causes

REPORT OF MEDICAL EXPERT

Practically Clears Up Mystery Surrounding Death of Woman Who Was Supposed to Have Been Murdered—Police Still Trying to Trace Jennings' Movements

Boston, Jan. 9.—The report of Dr. Whitney of Harvard that the death of Mrs. Mildred Donovan was due to natural causes, and the asphyxia to the stagnation of blood in the vocal cords while the woman was probably insensible from an epileptic attack, practically clears up the mystery which surrounded the case.

There remains alone the possible theory that the companion of Mrs. Donovan, New Year's eve, might have struck her in the face, causing the flow of blood which resulted in strangulation.

There were no witnesses to the scene which transpired between Mrs. Donovan and her companion on the lonely road beside the Holy Cross cemetery, Malden.

Mrs. Donovan may have fallen and struck her head against some hard substance or she may have been struck in the face. The blow was not sufficient to cause a large abrasion of the skin, but it caused considerable bleeding. It was not, however, of sufficient force to leave a black and blue mark such as the physicians declare would have been produced by a fist blow of any magnitude.

James B. Jennings, the last known companion of Mrs. Donovan, the police say, has been placed in the vicinity of the spot where the body of Mrs. Donovan was discovered, and at a time which coincides with the medical examiner's report as to when death ensued.

These are the connecting links in the chain of circumstantial evidence binding Jennings to the time and place of the woman's death.

Crime itself does not appear from the physical examination of the body. The police, faced with the medical opinions, will probably end their investigation shortly. They are working up the last pieces of evidence which, they claim, will make it certain that Jennings was with Mrs. Donovan when she died, or was dying, and dragged her body into the bushes beside the road where it was found.

In view of the prosecution of Jennings in Suffolk county for the killing of William MacPherson in the South End, it is doubtful if the Middlesex authorities present any evidence on the death of Mrs. Donovan before the grand jury until the outcome of the Suffolk county case is determined.

No inquest has been ordered and it is considered doubtful, under the circumstances, if one will be held for some time. The witnesses in the case are all persons well known and if occasion arises can be summoned at any time.

The clearing of the mystery has been accomplished in an unusually short time through the work of the Malden and state police.

NEW SHERIFF ON THE JOB

Raids Four Bangor Saloons and Others Hurtle to Close Doors

Bangor, Me., Jan. 6.—Sheriff Emerson and his deputies descended on four saloons here and seized probably $2000 worth of liquors.

Emerson, Republican, succeeded T. H. White, Democrat, Jan. 1. For the past two years the city has been "wide open," with about 125 bars in full blast, subject to local police regulations. The raids were headed by Emerson in person.

Emerson had no comment to make on his action, more than to say he intended to do his duty and enforce all laws. The raids are the first of any account since the withdrawal of the Sturgis deputies nearly two years ago.

The method used in making the estimate is that used by the United States census bureau.

MADE AND LOST FORTUNES

Career of James R. Keene, Wall Street's "Lone Wolf," Is Ended
New York, Jan. 5.—James R. Keene, the financier and horseman, died in a sanatorium here from the effects of an operation. He was 73 years old, and had been ill for a long time.

JAMES R. KEENE

With the death of Keene there passes the last figure in the line of the giant speculators of Wall street of early days. Keene was a man of ups and downs. A dozen times he made a fortune, and as often lost it.

EIGHTEEN PERISH ON THE LUCKENBACH

Searching For Bodies From Steamer Cut In Two

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—Revenue cutters and vessels cruising near the wreck of the steamship Julia Luckenbach, which was cut in two by the steamship Indrakuala, have failed so far to recover the bodies of Captain H. A. Gilbert, his wife, or those of any of the other sixteen who perished with them.

The vessel is almost submerged. Only the top of her funnel and rigging show. It was by clinging to the rigging that eight were saved.

Most of the victims of the disaster were drowned in their berths. The steamship was virtually cut in two and sank like a rock.

EXPULSION FROM YALE

Result of Athlete Flynn's Marriage to Winter Garden Actress

New Haven, Jan. 8.—Maurice B. ("Lefty") Flynn is expelled from Yale. The varsity footballer's marriage to Irene Leary, the Winter Garden actress, has acted automatically as his expulsion.

In Flynn, Yale loses her best candidate for pitcher of next season's nine, the star back of the eleven and the best all-round athlete in the college, his loss coming as a heavy blow to the already weakened varsity teams.

There is no rule of the university which compels a student who marries during his school days to leave, but Director Chittenden of the Sheffield scientific school declared last night that the marriage of a student under "notorious" conditions, as that under which Flynn's marriage is described, acts of itself as the student's dismissal from the university.

A GREAT STEP TOWARD PEACE

Demand For Port on the Adriatic Is Abandoned by Serbia

POWERS OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED

Hope Expressed That Other Sacrifices Will Not Be Asked—Pressure on Turkey by Ambassadors of the Powers, Who Urge Ottoman Government to Meet Allies' Terms

London, Jan. 9.—The Serbian government has reached the decision to withdraw from the Adriatic sea. This is regarded in all quarters as a notable step in the direction of peace.

The European powers were officially informed of this decision yesterday, Serbia announcing, as proof of her willingness to make sacrifices in the interest of the general peace, she had decided to remove her troops from the Adriatic coast immediately after peace had been concluded. The Serbian government hopes Europe will take this evidence of its moderation into account and will not ask other sacrifices which possibly would be beyond the power of Serbia to make.

Interest in the Balkan situation centres in Constantinople, from which capital it is expected the form which the action the European powers have decided to take will be divulged. Meanwhile the peace conference here is marking time. Rehad Pasha, the chief of the Ottoman envoys, is still waiting instructions from the Turkish government and the allies are making incessant efforts to influence the ambassadors of the European powers in their favor.

Dr. Danoff, the leader of the Bulgarian delegation, and M. Jonescu, minister of the interior of Roumania, continue their "conversations." Both are showing the greatest discretion, as they do not desire newspaper comments to embitter the differences between Roumania and Bulgaria.

The Greeks are displaying great dissatisfaction at the leading part taken by Italy, supported by Germany and Austria-Hungary, in the plans to deprive them of the islands of Imbros, Lemnos, Tenedos, Mytilene, Chios, Cos and Rhodes, for reasons which they declare to be destitute of any sense of justice. The Greeks still hope their arguments will prevail.

The Balkan delegates were unofficially informed that the ambassadors at Constantinople were continuing to exert pressure on the porte in order to find the best way to come to terms with the Balkan states. The tension between Austria and Russia has lessened as a result of an exchange of explanations regarding the military measures both have taken. Austria is said to have convinced Russia that her present military strength is less than that of either Russia or Germany.

BONDS FOR DYNAMITE MEN

Attorneys Expect to Have Them Ready Within Next Ten Days

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Bonds for the thirty-two labor leaders convicted in the dynamite suits, and in whose cases appeals were granted last week, will be submitted to the United States circuit court of appeals in Chicago within the next ten days, according to attorneys for the defendants.

The bonds will not be submitted to Judge Anderson, who presided in the case at Indianapolis. District Attorney Miller, who prosecuted the cases, will be asked to aid in passing on the sureties.

Sureties will be tendered in various sections of the United States, it being necessary for each defendant to obtain bondsmen from his own state. Blanks for the signatures of the prisoners have been forwarded to the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth.

TO MANAGE HIGHLANDERS

Chance Will Get $120,000 For Three-Year Contract in American League

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The American league has brought out its heaviest battalions and captured Frank Chance.

The former Chicago National league team's manager was signed yesterday afternoon to manage the New York club at a salary and interest which amounts to $120,000 for the three years for which he signed—the largest amount ever paid a baseball player.

Of this sum, $75,000 is salary and the remainder the estimated value of 5 percent of the net earnings of the club.

LARYNX BADLY AFFECTED

Rockefeller Cannot Speak Without Danger of Strangulation

New York, Jan. 9.—William Rockefeller probably will never be able to appear as a witness in the finance inquiry conducted by the Pujo committee at Washington, in the opinion of Dr. Chappell, his physician. The only way he could answer questions on the witness stand would be in writing, for speech might result in strangulation, so serious is the condition of Rockefeller's throat, according to the physician's statement published here.

Dr. Chappell practically said that Rockefeller must be silent for the remainder of his life. Rockefeller is now resting in the Bahamas.

"Mr. Rockefeller is past 70 years old," said Chappell, "and, in my opinion, he will never be physically able to appear on a witness stand; in fact, probably not even for a written examination, as his hands tremble so that it is difficult for him to write legibly."

HUNTER PAYS $500 FINE

Money Goes to Young Son of Maine Guide Who Was Killed

Skowhegan, Me., Jan. 9.—William Wilding of Indianapolis, who was charged with negligently shooting and killing Warren Holden, a guide, was discharged from custody on payment of $500 and costs, amounting in all to $675. The court stipulated that the $500 should be used for the benefit of the 8-year-old son of Holden.

Wilding for a number of years has spent his annual vacation hunting in this state. He mistook Holden for a deer while the two were on a hunting trip.

WARSHIP GOAT GETS ADMIRAL'S "GUAT"

Leads to Order Barring Mascots and Pets at Norfolk

Norfolk, Jan. 9.—A belligerent billy goat's lack of respect for the uniform, it is said, was the cause for an order of Rear Admiral Doyle banning all of the sailors' pets and mascots from battleships, cruisers and receiving ships at this station.

Admiral Doyle is reported to have been inside the uniform when the goat, a mascot aboard the New Hampshire, butted it so vigorously that it toppled over on the deck. The goat is now an exile, and with him went a long train of cats, dogs, parrots, bears and other goats. Doyle is commandant of the Norfolk navy yard.

MRS. WELLS' DEFENSE

Children Killed by Pork Which May Have Fallen Into Rat Poison

St. Albans, Vt., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Anna M. Wells, the Swanton woman who is confined at the county jail here on the charge of having poisoned two of her younger children, will make the defense that the children were poisoned from having eaten fresh pork which had accidentally become smeared with rat poison in the barn of the Wells place.

She explained in the presence of her husband, Julius Wells, that he had been mixing rat poison in the stable in a leaky dish and shortly afterward she left a dish of fresh pork in the stable and that it is her belief little Louis, the boy who died, knocked the dish over, the meat landing in the drippings of the dish in which the rat poison was mixed.

COMM. SS. ON IS LEGAL

Vermont Supreme Court So Decides on Public Service Body

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 8.—The public service commission of Vermont was declared by the state supreme court to be a legal body. The decision is rendered in a suit against the Rutland railroad for certain concessions in Alburg. The public service commission approved of the concessions and the railroad company appealed in order to test the commission's authority.

Fifteen measures have been held in committees of the legislature pending the decision of the court on the legality of the commission.

PROGRESSIVES TO HAVE BUREAU

Propose to Keep Busy During the Sessions of Congress

HEADQUARTERS AT CAPITAL

Will Issue Educational Press Matter and Push Questions For Which New Party Stands Through Congress—Plans Outlined in Significant Speech by Former Forester Pinchot

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Progressive party is preparing for active work in Washington during the sessions of the Sixty-third congress. With a few weeks a bureau will be opened in the national capital and from it the plan is to issue "educational" press matter, interviews, miscellany, and the rest of the regular output of a political campaign.

Although nothing has been said about it officially as yet, it is known here that a former administrative official of the government, a close friend of Theodore Roosevelt, will have charge of the bureau. Part of its work will be educational, and part of it will be the practical work of trying to push "progressive" measures through congress.

In view of this, some remarks delivered by former Forester Pinchot at a Progressive meeting in New Haven Monday night are believed to be significant. Pinchot's speech was given out by the National Conservative association in Washington, and is in part as follows:

"The Progressive party has not been relieved from the responsibility by the result of the election. As second of the great national parties our obligation to work for the practical application of our principles is as clear as if we had won this first battle."

"Accordingly we propose to formulate and present to congress and to the state legislatures bills to carry the planks of our state and national platforms into practical application. In a three months' campaign we advanced from a position of a party without organization or legal standing to that of the second or minority in the United States, and we accept cheerfully the duties which that position entails."

"Facing those duties squarely, the Progressive party, united, vigorous and determined, should lose no chance of forwarding the cause for which it stands. If the majority party in congress or state legislatures proposes to take action hostile to the public welfare, we of the Progressive party, through our senators and representatives, through our committees on legislation and in other ways, should oppose it to the limit of our powers; but any legislation genuinely for the public interest, originating from any party or from any source, we will support and defend, for we are and shall remain more interested in the prosperity, happiness and success of the people of the United States than in the fortunes of any political organization whatsoever, not excepting our own."

ORGANS KEPT ALIVE

Food Digested in Feline's Stomach While Outside Its Body

Paris, Jan. 9.—Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller institute, New York, winner of the Nobel prize for medicine, made the first announcement, through Professor Pozzi, to the Academy of Medicine, of the result of his latest and most remarkable experiment in the preservation of life extra-corporeally.

This consisted of removing from a cat all the thoracic and abdominal organs and placing them in a box containing a solution of artificial serum maintained at a heat of 38 degrees centigrade (100.4 Fahrenheit).

Dr. Carrel succeeded in keeping the organs working normally during thirteen hours after death. Animal food and water placed in the stomach were completely digested; the heart beats were strong and regular, the circulation perfect and the intestines showed proper peristaltic contraction.

Governor Likely to Slack Up on Pardons For a While

GREENWOOD'S TOBACCO BILL

All Married Men Would Appreciate Law Forbidding Their Wives Buying Cigars—Coal Question Coming Up—Industrial Accidents Found to Total Nearly $100,000 a Year

The pardon policy of Governor Foss is likely to be somewhat abridged this year, owing to the continued assaults upon the use of the pardoning power. The governor is saying very little about the matter and yet he feels that he has not been given sufficient credit for the liberal granting of pardons in what seemed to him deserving cases.

The governor's mind upon the subject has not changed and as soon as the temper of his council becomes manifest he will again place before it a number of pardons which have enlisted his sympathy.

Biggest Bill Record

Representative Daly of ward 12, in Boston, is an active young legislator. No fewer than a score of bills are already in the legislature upon his petition and he has the greatest number so far of anybody. Most of them are fanciful. His court of domestic relations is regarded as a novelty. Another bill provides that no strike-breakers may be imported. Another bill gives the pardoning power now vested in the governor's council to the house.

No Smokes From Wifey

There is an unconscious bit of humor in the bill proposed by Fred Greenwood of Everett to prevent smoking by women. The bill gets at the difficulty indirectly by extending the tobacco and cigar sales law to women. It applies now only to minors. But the bill really makes it impossible for a wife to buy her husband a box of Christmas cigars, because she is not permitted to buy them at all.

Most of the married men in the legislature will undoubtedly support the Greenwood bill when they become fully aware of the advantages that will accrue to long suffering manhood.

Tough on This Court

Think of any tribunal having to decide whether or not a man and his wife can live happily together, and then solemnly report its finding to a court which shall then say whether or not a divorce shall be granted.

That duty is imposed upon a so-called court of domestic relations which is to take up libels for divorce and try to bring about reconciliations.

It is not believed that this bill will get through a committee, to say nothing of going through the legislature. But it is interesting, nevertheless, as showing the disposition on the part of some folks to arrange for everything under public supervision.

No Milk Legislation?

The milk situation, which has created so much trouble in the last two legislatures, is fairly quiet. There are some whisperings that the consumers' committee will again stand back of the old Ellis bill with some new features, but as yet the bill has not been put into shape.

Governor Foss has shown a decided disposition to let the milk inspection stay right where it is, with the power all concentrated in local boards, and the localities have appeared to be jealous of what they thought their rights.

New Coal Probe

Something in the matter of coal is likely to drop within a few weeks, but it is hardly to be the price of coal. The improvement associations around Boston have been stirring up agitation upon coal prices for many weeks, but they have got no further than to decide that they will go before the legislature.

The laws relating to the revocation of coal licenses before the superior court and the prosecution of dealers in necessities are not regarded by Attorney General Swift as very efficacious laws. And so the committees are going to ask for legislative action.

But there is undoubtedly authority enough in law to hold public hearings without resorting to the legislature and from among the investigators there comes the word that this authority is soon to be invoked.

Insurance Rates Kept Up

Insurance Commissioner Hardison has thus far refused to sanction any reduction in the rates of workmen's compensation insurance, although the liability companies are anxious to reduce rates. The opinion of the commissioner is that the operation of the new act, which went into effect last July, has not been of long enough duration to enable the insurance experts to fix rates which shall stand practically.

The enormous number of industrial accidents was little appreciated until returns have begun to come in under the new act. That they total nearly 100,000 a year is now an established fact.

Reduction in Capita Cost

The per capita cost of liability insurance in 1909, based upon the report of the insurance commissioner for 1909 and the census figures for the preceding year, is $2.15. This represents 0.4215 percent, or less than one-half of 1 percent of the annual pay of the average wage earner of Massachusetts, given in that census as $510.18.

The per capita yearly cost of compensation insurance for fatal accidents alone, based upon the same census figures, would be $1.48. This represents 0.4215 percent, or less than one-third of 1 percent of the annual pay of the average wage earner of the state.

The Gib's Problem

The Gib's eggs, milk and butter bill promises to be an important addition to the Higgen anti-monopoly legislation, if the East Boston statesman does not become discouraged in the face of the cruel monopoly that fixes prices. The Gib is Representative Thomas L. Giblin and he wishes the law fixed so that the attorney general will practically fix the prices of the necessities of life so that the producers may get a high price for their products and that prices may be lowered to the consumer. He has a problem worthy of the best brain in the legislature, and if he wins out he can have everything that East Boston can give her favorite sons.

Small Loans

E. Gerry Brown's office for the supervision of small loans is getting to be a paternalistic institution. In addition to being merely supervisory it has become advisory to small borrowers who constantly resort to Mr. Brown with requests for advice and with complaints.

The office has opened up the eyes of people to the really large number of small borrowers who are perpetually in trouble because of being forced into harsh loan contracts which they cannot meet. Brown has won several important points with the loan offices in his fight against the making of a charge for papers where a new loan is made and in turning over unfortunate customers to each other. It is here that the severity of the small loan business makes itself most manifest.

Boynton Persists

Boston and New York one and one-quarter hours apart and the Pacific coast one day away is the promise of E. Moody Boynton, the veteran inventor, who is again at the state house this year asking for state aid for his bicycle railway. Persistent and tireless as ever, he has begun his march through the state house corridors, with his pockets stuffed full of literature and expert testimony upon the single rail system for which he has given years of his life. Boynton's is a story that a score of years from now may be worth knowing.

Writing the Blue Book

When Henry Merwin first became clerk of bills in third reading at the state house his modesty made him express the fear that he would have too little to do to earn his money.

Such is not the view of Mr. Merwin at this time, because he has become a sort of unofficial court of appeals for all who want the last word in bill drafting. Somebody said the other day that Merwin would soon have the job of writing the entire blue book of statutes. This year the number of bills so far that he has been required to draft is nearly 300. At this rate he will have drafted not far from 700 before the time limit comes upon the introduction of new legislation.

The house and senate clerks began their work early this year, so that they are at least two weeks ahead in the matter of getting new legislation in print and having it referred to appropriate committees.

Compensation Bills

Ex-Representative "Davie" Ahearn of South Framingham has several important amendments to the workmen's compensation act. One of them provides that payment to the people entitled to it shall date from the time of the injury instead of two weeks thereafter. Another is that the insurance association shall pay for the medical and hospital services. That both these amendments will be added to the act in due course of time is hardly to be doubted. But whether the act should now be amended is rather for the industrial accident board to say.

Crane Wants It Jan. 23

Russell Crane, who was in the house last year as a Republican, but who has been a promising Bull Moose leader and head of the Bull Moose legislative committee, has come quickly to the rescue of those who are crying for a bill to have the choice of a successor to Winthrop Murray Crane go to the people instead of to the legislature.

Mr. Crane picks the fatal number 23 as the day of January that there should be a special election for this purpose and his bill provides for second and third choices, in the same way that the recently defeated Cambridge election law devised by Professor Johnson provided.

Crane on Inauguration Committee Washington, Jan. 6.—Senators Bacon, Overman and Crane were appointed senate members of the joint congressional committee to arrange for the inauguration of President-elect Wilson.

The Coming Town Meeting

The passing of January first draws the attention of local citizens to the near approach of the annual town meeting. As is its custom, the Townsman will welcome to its columns communications on all matters that are of particular interest at this time of year, and trust that if there are any new propositions to set before the people, in which individual citizens, or groups of citizens have an interest, the columns of the Townsman may be used to inform the citizens with regard to such matters. So far as can be noted at the present time, there seems to be little of importance to come up at the coming March meeting, outside of the regular appropriations. Several very important matters are in the air; some of them may and some may not, come up for discussion at this particular time, but the time cannot be long deferred when these serious problems in connection with public service in Andover must be solved.

The writer has been called to account several times during the past year because he has failed to criticize the conduct of the street department under its present management, many people contending that no relief has been secured under present conditions, and some contending that highways have been allowed to go back rather than ahead, in the past year. We think this criticism is justified, so far as the condition of the highways is concerned, but it is not justified so far as the Townsman is concerned. The Townsman has never criticized a first year official, and we say this without any reservation whatever. It has always been believed that men should be given an opportunity to work out their problems, and we are not going to break that rule at the present time. For several years we have contended that while officials have deserved censure in their management of the Highway Department of Andover, the greater problem is the system under which they operate rather than the individuals who do the actual work.

Many queries have been made as to what the writer plans to do regarding this matter at the coming annual meeting. If it is possible for him to find the time to prepare the necessary information, the story will be set forth by him in these columns during the coming few weeks, in detailed form. If the pressure of business, which has been very heavy for the past few months, makes it impossible to find such an opportunity, then very little attention will be given by him to the highway problem this year, not for any lack of confidence in the remedy which he believes in, but solely because business conditions are such that the demands upon his time are already very oppressive.

Less Politics—More Railroad

Things are brightening a bit in the railroad situation in Massachusetts, and it begins to look as if there was a chance that the yellow journals, and the yellow public they have created, might decide to stop their "investigations" a little while and allow the men who want to run railroads, a chance to do a little railroad.

For five years now, one railroad or another in Massachusetts has been required to devote its energies to combating the attacks of one form or another of the muckraking element. First it was the Boston & Albany, then the Boston & Maine, and lastly the New York, New Haven & Hartford. When the legislators who hadn't paid their own poll taxes had finished proposing that the state should buy the Boston & Albany, and when all the various newspapers and organizations had ceased to hammer men and methods controlling the Boston & Albany, the officials of that road found time to attend to their legitimate business and began to run a railroad. The result has been a service on the Boston & Albany over 90 per cent perfect during the past four years.

It's about time the same opportunity should be given to President Mellen to work out his much more complicated problems. People differ very greatly about his ability as a diplomatic manager of trade organizations and legislative assemblies, but there is practically no difference of opinion upon his great ability as a practical railroad man. Let him have a chance to show that, untrammelled by oppressive legislation and all its attendant agitation, and we have no doubt about the future service on either of the great systems over which he presides.

Editorial Cinders

The first of the important Andover institutions to hold its annual meeting was the Savings Bank which took its annual account of stock in the way of electing officers at its meeting last Monday. The report was like all reports which have come from that institution the past few years. A year of prosperity, safeguarded by conservative management, was set forth in the annual statements prepared by the treasurer and approved by careful examination of the different committees. The town is to be congratulated that this institution is now very close to the five million dollar mark, that its funds are invested in the most careful way, that its reserve is up to the limit, and that its earnings are being wisely looked after by those in charge. To President Flint and Treasurer Boutwell are due the thanks of not only the depositors, but of the many different interests who have learned to rely upon the judgment of this institution as one of the important servants of Andover and the surrounding towns.

The declaration by the "Progressives" in favor of the purchase of the Boston & Maine Railroad by the state, is just such a fool idea as one would expect from that source. With a falling cause and a dearth of issues, any sort of a visionary scheme looks good to people who plan in dreams, and talk in circles. Like all of the others who talk so glibly about "the state" doing this, that, and the other thing, as a solution of every problem that arises, there is no tangible suggestion made about what the state will do with the Boston & Maine when it "takes" it, or how its relation to the other states where it holds charters and does business is to be looked after. We presume that these petty details are to be left for solution to such men as we know in Andover as leading "Progressives."

At this writing, the choice of a successor to Senator Crane is still in the air, but the chances seem to favor Congressman Weeks. The state is fortunate in the prospect. Some of the side-lights on the contest now waging at the State House shine pretty brightly upon some more shattered idols, and at the top of the heap of these idols seems to rest the elongated form of Speaker Cushing. It seems to be a sad truth that these highly sensitized political contraptions bred in the Back Bay and brewed in Harvard College have very great difficulty in going sound very long at a time.

School Budget for 1913

At a meeting of the school board held Tuesday evening the financial budget for 1913 was presented by the financial committee and approved. The following are the figures:

Schools	$37,180
Schoolhouses	1,500
Books and Supplies	2,400
	$41,080
In 1912 the total amount called for was 41,500, as follows:
Schools	$35,000
Schoolhouses	4,000
Books and Supplies	2,500

The increase for schools is caused by several items: cost of coal, transportation, teachers' salaries, and a new set of tubes at the central heating plant.

Automobile Kills Boy

Philip Blood, a student at Phillips Academy, ran over and killed Marriott Hacker, the ten-year-old son of Henry M. Hacker of 239 Lynnfield street, Lynn, Wednesday noon, while driving a light touring car.

Mr. Blood's home is in Lynn and he was on his way from Andover to his home in his machine when the accident occurred. He was rounding a curve on Lynnfield street near the boy's home just as the youngster was coasting on his sled down a slope to the street. As the automobile reached the corner the boy's sled was directly in front of it; the wheels passed over the child's back, and although Mr. Blood hurried him to the Lynn hospital, death followed almost immediately. Mr. Blood was arrested, charged with manslaughter, and bail was set at $3000.

The police believe the story of Blood to the effect that the accident was unavoidable.

Lecture on Panama Canal

A large audience listened to a most instructive and pleasing lecture on the Panama Canal last night. The lecturer was Farnham Bishop, who has not only spent a great deal of time at the isthmus during the construction period, but has given the great undertaking much study.

He began last night with an account of the early attempts to cut the canal under the direction of de Lesseps, the great French engineer. He showed pictures of the work done and of the abandoned machinery, from the bronze parts of which it is proposed to strike commemorative medals for the workmen employed at the completion of this year. Beginning at Colon, Mr. Bishop took his audience over every inch of the way, and the vastness of the undertaking was apparent from the pictures of the Culebra Cut, the Gatun dam and locks and of the work of the huge steam shovels which take up eight tons of debris at one scoop. Mr. Bishop showed the quarters of the men, the commissariat department and other establishments along the line of cuts. In speaking of the isthmus he remarked that in spite of all these evidences of civilization there was still a tract of country bordering on the canal which has never yet been explored by white men.

Mr. Bishop told many interesting and humorous stories of the work and his lecture was greatly enjoyed.

Snow, piano; Rudolph Ringwall, violin; Virginia Stickney, cello; Pauline Curley, soprano; and Hugh Towne, reader.

His program for the concert at Abbot Academy will be as follows: Sarabande—Passepied I—Passepied II

Madame Marie Sundelius of Boston has been engaged to give a song recital for the last concert in the year's series. The date for this concert has not as yet been set, on account of some uncertainty as to the time of installing the new organ. The vocal recital will, however, be placed on a Saturday afternoon as have been the others this year.

Tickets may be bought at the Andover Bookstore or at Abbot Academy at a dollar and a half for the two recitals. Tickets for single concerts are one dollar each.

A Pleasant Dancing Party

A very pleasant dancing party was held in the Workman hall on last Friday evening, the affair being conducted by four well-known young ladies of the town. The music was furnished by the Adelphi orchestra and was especially good. Many of the dances were waltz Germans and these gave the dancers an excellent opportunity to become acquainted, and as a result the affair abounded with sociability. Refreshments were served.

Among those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Buttrick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. David Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. George M. R. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Austin F. Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. Chester S. Auding, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Burt, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wyllie, Mr. and Mrs. David L. Coutts, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D'Arcy, Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Reed.

Misses Helen Bailey, Josephine Abbott, Lulu Abbott, Madeline Hewes, Ruth Temple, Beatrice Temple, Mary Erving, Eva Erving, Hertha Fletcher, Bessie P. Goldsmith, Helen Knowles, Cynthia Flint, Elizabeth Abbott, Lena Clark, Margaret Hoyt, Ruth Lindsay, Grace Cheever, Florence Richardson.

The Parcel Post in Andover

The parcel post which went into effect on January 1, has been very favorably received by people of this community, and has caused a noticeable increase in the amount of mail matter handled at the local postoffice. Parcels of all description have been mailed under the new rates, including various articles of a perishable nature. Several dressed chickens and fowls have been sent to or delivered from the office with very satisfactory results.

One parcel which was mailed this week by a resident in one of the outlying districts made an unusually distinct impression upon the postoffice force, and for a few moments was the center of common interest. It needed no investigation, only reasonable proximity and a judicious use of one's olfactory powers to realize that the contents of the package pertained in some manner to a skunk, and thus it proved to be. The gentleman from the rural district was sending to his friend a skunk skin which had evidently not forgotten that it was a skunk skin, and which was still overwhelmingly true to its name.

Christ Church Annual Supper

The annual parish supper of Christ church will be given in the parish house next Monday evening, January 13. All persons eighteen years old or over, who attend Christ church are cordially invited to the supper. Guests will enter the church, remove their wraps, and go through the corridor to the parish house. The hour for assembling is 6.45. The annual parish meeting will follow.

Burns Anniversary Concert

The 154th Burns Anniversary Concert and Ball under the auspices of Clan Johnston, No. 785, O. S. C., will be held in the town hall next Friday evening, January 17. These annual concerts have always been of a high class and the Clansmen have as usual spared no expense in securing the very best talent possible for this year's concert.

Two of the soloists, Miss Esther Hood, soprano, and James Singer, baritone, have already appeared before Andover audiences and the latter's return after two years' absence will be welcomed, for he is a great favorite in Andover.

Miss Tanner, contralto, and John Young, tenor, are new to Andover, but many good things are said about them. Theodore Martin, who sang here in 1911 and who is now with Raymond Hitchcock in the "Red Widow" company, speaks very highly of Mr. Young's abilities and says he is one of the best exponents of Scottish song he has heard. Mr. Martin was considered by many the best tenor who has ever taken part in Burns concerts in Andover, and if Mr. Young is as good as his sponsor there is a hearty welcome awaiting him.

Two new dancers, Misses Ferguson and Boyd, have been secured and both have made reputations at Scottish gatherings. The concert begins at eight o'clock.

Tickets can be secured from members of the committee and the advance sale ensures a large audience. The program:

Meeting of Abbot Academy Club

The Abbot Academy club met at the Hotel Vendome on Saturday, January 4, to hear Miss Melita E. Knowles speak of the work of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union. Miss Knowles was formerly connected with Abbot and everyone was glad of this opportunity to hear her speak. She spoke of the various departments which this Union carries on—how a girl can learn home industries; how department stores send girls there to have instruction in being saleswomen, in which a regular course is given. This work was started by a lady physician living on the famous Beacon Hill, and its object is to help the advancement of women.

After Miss Knowles had completed her interesting talk, Miss Mabelle Boshier, who was a teacher at Abbot, spoke of her work in the "Paradise of the Pacific." She is in charge of the Industrial School in Honolulu, which is composed of students from various nations. Then the girls are also taught home industries and made to know the necessity of cleanliness. This is going to make quite a change in the next generation when these students are mistresses of their own homes. This is the good work which Miss Boshier is doing.

At the close of Miss Boshier's talk tea was served.

Annual Meeting of South Church

The annual meeting of the South church will be held on Wednesday evening, January 15. Supper will be served in the vestry at 6:30 o'clock, followed by a social hour. The reports of the year's work will be given by the leaders of the various departments, officers will be elected and the annual business of the church transacted. The annual report by Mr. Shipman will also be given.

No special invitations have been sent out but it is hoped that every church member who can do so will attend.

The regular meeting of the Executive Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held at the Guild House on Friday, January 17, at 3:30 o'clock.

Attempted Suicide

Timothy Sullivan, a resident of Corbett street, attempted to commit suicide on Wednesday evening of this week by cutting his throat with a razor.

The man had been in poor health for some time and at intervals showed signs of mental derangement, and it is thought that while suffering from one of these attacks he tried to end his life. He was unsuccessful in the attempt, however, and aided by the police his family speedily summoned a Lawrence physician to attend him. It is thought that he will recover.

INSTALLATIONS HELD

G. A. R. and Associate Organizations
Install on Friday Evening.
A. O. H. on Monday Night

On Friday evening, a large audience gathered in G. A. R. hall to witness the annual joint installation of officers elect of General Wm. F. Bartlett Post 99, General Wm. F. Bartlett Relief Corps, 127, and Camp Walter L. Raymond, Sons of Veterans, 111. In addition to the members of the three organizations present there were also in attendance, veterans and Sons of Veterans from Lawrence and guests from Reading, Melrose and other points.

The installation of the Grand Army officers first took place, the installing officer being Comrade W. E. Manson of Gen. Lawton Post of Lawrence. The ceremonies were characterized by the peculiar impressiveness which always attends the gatherings and services of the few remaining Boys in Blue, and as the veterans took their obligations, minds went back fifty years to the time when as young men they took the same duty of honor and loyalty upon them. It was a source of gratification to all present that the commander of Post 99, George W. Chandler, who has been ill for several weeks was able to be present and take his part in the installation.

The new officers are as follows: Commander, George W. Chandler; Senior Vice-commander, John McLaughlin; Junior Vice-commander, Henry Clukey; Surgeon, George K. Dodge; Quartermaster, M. L. Farnham; Officer of the Day, J. B. A. Russell; Officer of the Guard, John Hutchins; Adjutant, J. Warren Berry; Sergeant-Major, Ballard Holt; Q. M. Sergeant, James Saunders; Patriotic Instructor, E. Kendall Jenkins.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the Woman's Relief Corps installed their officers. The work was very effectively carried out by Miss Delia Curley as installing officer, assisted by Mrs. David Young as conductor, and the following color bearers: Mrs. W. H. Pearce, Miss Rebecca McCullom, Miss Sadie Hobbs and Miss Kate Robinson. When the newly installed president, Mrs. Charles Buchanan, had been conducted to her station, she very gracefully thanked the retiring president, Mrs. E. R. Eastman, for her faithful services during her past three terms of office and presented her with the past president's gold badge. To the installing officer, Miss Curley, Mrs. Buchanan presented a large bouquet of carnations.

The Relief Corps officers are given below: President, Mrs. Chas. Buchanan; Vice-President, Miss Mae Morrill; Junior Vice-President, Mrs. Frank Valentine; Treasurer, Mrs. Ira Buxton; Secretary, Miss Sadie Hobbs; Guard, Mrs. Geo. W. Mearns; Chaplain, Mrs. Stephen Jackson; Delegate to Convention, Miss Mae Morrill; Alternate, Mrs. John Ralph; Patriotic Instructor, Mrs. James Anderson; Conductor, Mrs. Charlotte Collins; Assistant Conductor, Mrs. Sarah MacCreadie; Color Bearers, Mrs. M. Belle Eastman, Mrs. Wm. A. Allen, Miss Delia Curley, Mrs. David Lindsay; Musician, Miss Annie Buchanan; Press Correspondent, Mrs. John Ralph; Assistant Guard, Mrs. Etta Young.

The installation of the officers of Walter L. Raymond camp then took place, the ceremonies being in charge of Henry F. Weiler, Division Secretary of the Massachusetts Sons of Veterans. He was assisted by L. H. Lawrence of Camp 21. Mr. Weiler acquitted himself in a very enjoyable manner, concluding with the presentation to the new Commander, Guy W. Gilbert, of the iron cross of the order. He later made a few remarks in which he outlined the work which is being done by his camp in Melrose and its recent successful erection of a new home.

Commander Gilbert also spoke and emphasized the effort which the camp is to make during the coming year to increase the membership and efficiency of the organization.

The officers of Walter L. Raymond camp: Commander, Guy W. Gilbert; Senior Vice-Commander, Arthur W. Holt, P. C.; Junior Vice-Commander, Geo. E. Clemons; Secretary, Jesse Billington, P. C.; Treasurer, Walter E. Buxton, P. C.; Camp Council, Arthur W. Holt, P. C.; Patriotic Instructor, Floyd Eastman; Guide, Ira Buxton; Inside Guard, Edward Flint.

The evening was concluded with a social good time and the serving of refreshments by the ladies.

A. O. H. Installation

Over three hundred persons attended the joint installation of Andover Division, 6, A. O. H., the Ladies' Auxiliary, Division 6, of this town, and Cardinal O'Connell Branch, Division 20, of North Andover, which was held in A. O. U. W. hall on Monday evening. It was the first public installation which the Andover organizations have held and success attended it in every particular.

The A. O. H. officers were installed by the County President, Michael J. Ahearn and suite of Lynn. The ceremonies were carried out with ease and facility, the following officers being installed: President, Charles Hughes; vice-president, Jas. Menihane; treasurer, Thomas Doyle; recording secretary, Joseph Fallon; financial secretary, Frank S. McDonald; sergeant-at-arms, Daniel McCormick; sentinel, John Duggan; chairman of standing committee, David Lynch.

The two divisions of the Ladies' Auxiliary had their officers installed jointly, the installing officer being Mrs. Katherine Keefe O'Mahoney and suite of Lawrence.

The new officers of Division 6 are: President, Miss Katherine Moynihan; vice-president, Mrs. Mary Adams; recording secretary, Miss Josephine Higgins; financial secretary, Miss

Phillips Academy Notes

The first concert of the season of the Phillips Academy musical clubs will take place on January 18, at Rogers Hall, Lowell.

Several changes and improvements were made at the Phillips Union during the Christmas vacation.

A meeting of track candidates was held at the gym on Monday afternoon and the winter's work discussed. There will be no board track work, but instead the squad will walk three times a week.

The Lawrence Survey

In view of the prominence in which the city of Lawrence has been placed during the past year by reason of its great industrial strike and other serious labor problems, the recent publication by the trustees of the White Fund of the Report of the Lawrence Survey makes a timely contribution to the general information in circulation regarding the city and its various departments in their bearing upon the life of its citizens.

According to the title page of the book, it consists of studies in relation to Lawrence made under the advice of Francis H. McLean by Robert E. Todd and Frank Sanborn.

Following an introduction by Wilbur E. Rowell, Esq., chairman of the trustees, come short preliminary articles by Mr. McLean and City Engineer Arthur D. Marble. The next hundred pages are then given up to a singularly complete report on Housing Conditions, written by Robert E. Todd. Mr. Todd brings to light conditions of which probably only a very small percentage of the citizens of Lawrence, and certainly but few persons in surrounding towns were aware. He points out the present difficulties, and the serious conditions which are following in the wake of present housing arrangements. The article includes a discussion of the fire menace, of sanitation, light, maintenance, building regulations, and the future of the congested sections.

Following Mr. Todd's article, there is an equally interesting and vital story centering around the public health, written by Prof. Sanborn of Tufts College. It contains a complete report on the production of milk, dairy methods, etc.; treats of the water supply, and also takes up the sewage and garbage question. A chapter on the Board of Health, what its services should be, and what they actually are in Lawrence, is also timely, while the article is brought to a close with a clearly drawn picture of the population and its relation to Public Health.

The Report, which was printed by the Andover Press, contains a large number of illustrations, maps and charts, which add in no small measure to the interest of the book. Copies of the Report can be had by application to Wilbur E. Rowell, Esq., Bay State Bldg., Lawrence. They are also on sale in Lawrence at fifty cents a copy.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Eggs

I have just read an article on Eggs in a Boston paper, the heading of which was "Eggs Is Eggs." Putting the "is" for "are" just meant that eggs were high in price this winter. Having kept a few hens, I may be permitted to say my say about eggs.

The poultryman or woman who sells eggs at twenty-five cents a dozen in the month of April is really getting a higher price than at fifty cents a dozen in December, as hens with the same amount of food lay twice as many eggs in April. I am not to try to instruct people who have poultry how to get eggs in December; only that to do this the young hens or pullets should be hatched in March or April. So the man in the street can see that for at least six months the poultry keeper has fed and cared for these pullets and got no eggs. The truth of the matter is that the supply of fresh eggs in winter is not equal to the demand and therefore the price is higher.

Preserving eggs in cold storage or by other methods is a good thing and a well-preserved egg can be used by those who eat ham and eggs, as the aroma of the bacon hides any bad taste the egg may have. But to those folks, and I am one of them, who prefer a fresh egg boiled just three minutes, the fresh egg must be had, whatever the price may be. It is astonishing, almost beyond my powers of figuring, to note the number of millions of eggs imported into Britain every year from the continent. Spain, France, Belgium, Denmark, and even Russia export eggs for the British market. When we think of the six millions of people in London and its suburbs we can easily see how London alone will require a few eggs.

It is amusing to me to find Boston preferring brown-shelled eggs; it may be just because brown-shelled eggs are usually bigger in size. New York prefers eggs with a white shell and I think New York is right so far as quality is concerned. There is really no difference in the food value or in the chemical composition of white shell or brown shell. Hens fed on the same kind of food, say a Leghorn, giving a white-shelled egg, and a Plymouth Rock giving a brown-shelled egg, are said by experts to be of equal value as to food qualities. As I said that the New York folks were right in preferring the white shell, I merely state that epicures say that the flavor and sweetness of a white-shelled egg is better than the darker colored one. Personally I like the West Parish Leghorn and Minorca eggs. They may not be so large but the yolk is almost as big as the Plymouth Rock kind.

I notice that in Boston today the wholesale price of best quality of fresh nearby eggs is quoted at thirty-one cents per dozen, so that allowing for a profit to the middleman and also to the retailer, forty cents is about the price to the consumer. The cold storage eggs are useful in many ways. You cannot open a cook book without seeing that eggs in many forms are included in the receipts for almost every kind of fancy cake and in the cooking of all varieties of dishes; but a soft-boiled fresh egg is the only egg that can be enjoyed if eaten from the shell, as the least taint of antiquity spoils the whole thing. The schools have now taken up cooking as part of the training necessary. Let me just mention four ways of boiling a three-minute or soft-boiled egg, only remarking that all cookery is neither more nor less than the capacity of taking trouble. The way that hospital cooks boil a soft-boiled egg is perhaps the best; namely, let the water boil, lift off the vessel and put in the eggs, then let the vessel sit on the hob, not on the fire, for four minutes, and you have a perfectly boiled egg. Another mode which French cooks prefer is to put the eggs in cold water, put the vessel on the fire, and the moment the water boils the eggs are just right. The third way is practised in Scotland; let the water boil, lift off the vessel for a few moments, put in the eggs and boil for just three minutes. This way of boiling gives good results and the reason why the vessel is taken off the fire for a moment is to stop the hot steam from burning your hand and also to prevent the egg from breaking by the sudden plunge into quick boiling water. Then the fourth, or as I hear, the common way here, is to let the water boil. As the steam rises from it your hand cannot slip in the eggs quietly; you must hold your hand high enough not to be burned, and of course the eggs drop in with a splash and are apt to be broken. Then boil three minutes. Those who practice this fourth plan are not usually particular as to the three-minute rule. If the butcher's boy is expected, the cook's back hair has to be put in order and then a pleasant conversation with this butcher's boy about when he is to treat the cook by going with her to see the moving pictures, and the eggs may be boiling for eight or ten minutes. This is no exaggerated account of the fourth method. I intended to say something about the proper way to eat an egg, but my space is full and eating an egg may give me a new text for another egg story.

A TRIP TO CALIFORNIA

Experiences of Andover Woman en route to Pasadena Described in Interesting Letter

The following interesting letter written to the Townsman office by Miss Nellie H. Farmer, will, we are sure, be enjoyed by her many friends in Andover. Miss Farmer is now in Pasadena, Calif., where she is spending the winter with Mrs. Prindle and Miss Whitmore, formerly of this town. The letter is dated December 1, 1912.

Here I am at last, in this land of sunshine and flowers, such flowers! beautiful roses of all kinds, great bushes of heliotrope covered with blossoms, poinsettias as tall as small trees with great big blossoms, sweet-peas, ivy geraniums, and flowers of all kinds blooming out of doors in great profusion today, December 1st.

Ever since I came the sun has shone from morning until night, hot and bright, without a cloud in the sky. It is cool in the early morning and the evening, but up to 86 and 90 in the middle of the day. I am wearing my thinnest summer clothes and we eat our meals out on the back porch, where we look out upon some beautiful mountains that look as if one could walk to them in five minutes, but are really four miles away. The air is so clear that distances are very deceptive.

The morning after I came, I picked some ripe figs to eat and lots of those long dark purple grapes, also some white Muscatels so sweet that they turn to raisins if left on the vines. We picked some bunches of grapes and part raisins.

I had just the nicest trip coming out here that you can imagine. For one thing the cars are so comfortable and run so smoothly, and I slept finely.

I thought the Berkshire Hills were beautiful, and in summer they must be great. When we came by Lake Michigan, the waves were dashing in just as if it was the ocean, and I could not realize that it was fresh water.

It was cold and rainy when we reached Chicago and we didn't go around much, only into a few stores. We got our dinner at the beautiful restaurant in Marshall Field's great store. Chicago seemed just like New York.

We left Chicago at 10.30 at night and were in the train all the next day. It was pleasant and warm, and all through Illinois, Indiana and Nebraska we rode through acres and acres of cornfields and pastures where there were droves of cattle, horses, sheep and pigs, some as black as coal, others brown.

Perhaps you think you have seen muddy roads and bad streets, but the worst aren't a circumstance to some. I saw that day. There were also acres and acres of alfalfa.

At seven o'clock next morning we reached Denver. After breakfast we walked around, then took a sight-seeing trolley for a trip around the city. Then we visited the State House and the Museum, and after dinner it was time to take the train for Colorado Springs where we arrived Friday night at six o'clock. The hotel here was fine. Saturday morning we started our sight-seeing, first by taking a trip up the mountains in an auto to Crystal Park, at an elevation of nearly 8000 feet. Imagine the view. The road wound around, back and forth, in one place making a bow-knot, in another the letter S, the letter M, around curves, making two curves in a Y, and at one having to turn the auto on a turn-table. At one place we could see twelve elevations of the road. In places it was covered with a little snow.

From the auto we stepped into a carriage and drove around Manitou, through Williams Canon, a narrow road between high mountains, and went into the Cave of the Winds where we saw wonderful stalactite and stalagmite formations. When the cave was first discovered people had to go in by torchlight. Now it is lighted by 1000 electric lights. From there we drove through the Garden of the Gods, where great rocks stand alone in the most fantastic shapes, and if you use your imagination enough, you can see all sorts of strange animals. There is a fine image of a Scotchman there.

The next day we had the same driver, and, by the way, he called us "bean eaters from Boston," and took a forty-mile drive among the mountains through canons, to Cheyenne Seven Falls. There are seven waterfalls here, one above the other, and I climbed 286 steps here.

At our highest elevation, 10,000 feet, miles from any house, we came upon a house, barn, etc., where a little old lady nearly eighty years old lives all alone with her cats and two burros, all winter. In summer she has some one to help her and serves lunches to tourists. They said that on an average, 30,000 go there every year. She is well educated, is a prospector and has men working for her in the mountains, has written a history of her life, which she sells to people who pass, and is a very interesting person. On her forehead is a scar where years ago an Indian struck her with a tomahawk. In the afternoon I took a trolley trip in the city and saw the Colorado College buildings.

The railroads up Pike's Peak had stopped running on account of the snow, so we couldn't go up there.

We left Colorado Springs Monday morning for Salt Lake City, and all that afternoon travelled through the most wonderful mountains, hundreds of feet high on either side. In the middle of the night we reached our highest elevation, 10,220 feet, and we had two engines to pull and one to push us up the steep grade. The next forenoon we passed many mining camps, and I never knew before how some people live—in the worst little shanties you can imagine, huddled together in the mountains, miles from everywhere.

The Rocky Mountains are so different from the White Mountains—almost no trees, and instead of huge ledges of solid rock, they look as if composed of millions of rocks and stones mixed with mud and hardened.

They stand out in spires, and columns and peaks, and one can imagine castles and forts and all sorts of buildings.

That afternoon we came out of the mountains through Castle Gate into a beautiful fertile valley extending for miles and miles and covered with Mormon farms and villages. On one side a lake thirty miles long, on the other the mountains, and I never shall forget how beautiful it looked to see the sun shining on the snow-capped mountains, against the most beautiful blue sky.

We were four hours late in reaching Salt Lake City, on account of an accident to a train ahead, up in the mountains, in the night.

Salt Lake is a beautiful city and no where have I ever seen so many pretty young girls with lovely complexions.

All three of these cities have very fine streets, the principal one about three times as wide as Main street, and running miles in one direction.

One in Denver extends straight for 35 miles. At Denver we saw lots of men standing around, Mexicans, Indians, cow-boys, ranchers, and miners, different types to what we are accustomed to see.

We had a very delightful trolley trip around Salt Lake City, out to Fort Douglas up on the mountain side where we had a fine view of the city. We went into the Mormon Temple grounds where a guide showed us around. In the Tabernacle we heard a fine organ recital.

We left there at five in the afternoon and all the next day we rode through the dreariest, most desolate desert of sand you can imagine, through Nevada and California. We passed many lonely places—just a water tank, an artesian well, and two or three little houses. When we did pass a town (?) there was a little shanty with Post Office over the door, another with General Store, and always the inevitable saloon, spelled out in big capital letters across the front. It was also always to be plainly seen in mining camps. Such clouds of dust followed the train through this wilderness of sand that we could not sit out of doors on the observation car, and it even sifted inside.

About four o'clock we struck civilization at Riverside, where we passed through acres and acres of beautiful orange groves loaded with half ripe fruit. Then through acres of grape vines, not on trellises as we see them but more like bushes. At five we reached Los Angeles, and then we came here, and here I am 3000 miles from Andover, in one of the most attractive and convenient bungalows you can imagine, made artistic with lovely pictures and furniture.

Pasadena is a wealthy city, many multi-millionaires having beautiful homes here. I wish you could see the way people go to church here. There are many churches and all are filled to overflowing. I went to the Methodist last Sunday and today. A very large building, beautiful inside, fine music, a smart preacher, and crowded full. The street outside lined with autos both sides and quantities of motor cycles. After the churches are out, it looks more like people coming from the theatre than from church.

Last Sunday we had strawberries and green peas for dinner. In the afternoon we went down to Los Angeles to dinner at a hotel. In the evening we went to the Auditorium, Robert J. Burdett's church, and although we got there three quarters of an hour before service began, we had to go up to the fourth balcony to get a seat. There were between 8000 and 9000 persons present. We heard an organ recital on a big organ whose pipes ran over half the roof of the immense building, an operatic singer who came in to sing "Inflammatus" from Stabat Mater, by Rossini, and a choir of nearly 100 voices, all the ladies wearing gowns like graduation gowns, only white.

All along the street are palm trees or pepper trees. The latter are very lovely with their graceful leaves and long clusters of red berries. I wish you could all see the beautiful flower gardens, the tropical trees, the lovely bungalows. Lots and lots of ladies here drive electric autos.

Save your money and visit California. The trip across the country is worth the money.

FELKER'S MESSAGE

Progressive Legislation Urged by Governor of New Hampshire

Concord, N. H., Jan. 8.—Governor Felker, New Hampshire's first Democratic chief executive in thirty-eight years, in his inaugural address outlined a program for progressive legislation by the state legislature. He declared himself in favor of the election of United States senators by the people, and urged that the direct primary be extended to nominations for United States senators, the president and the vice president.

Governor Felker declared a halt should be called on expenditures, saying the expenditures and debts of the state have nearly doubled in the past twelve years. Other measures advocated by him were the conservation of New Hampshire's natural resources, laws to protect the purity of the ballot, building of good roads, ratification of the federal income tax amendment, revision of the public statutes, longer school years in the country districts, more appropriations to stimulate interest in farming in the state, reducing the number of state commissions by consolidating some of them.

BIBLE STUDY ON
GOD CREATED MAN
IN HIS OWN IMAGE.

Genesis 1:26-2:25; Psalm 8—Jan. 12

HOW FROM teaching Evolution, the Bible teaches the very reverse. St. Paul declares, "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin. Thus death passed upon all men, because all are sinners." (Romans 5:12.) The Bible represents man as the masterpiece of mundane creation. God pronounced him "very good." Nor could we esteem it just that any but a perfect being should be placed on trial for life or death everlasting.

A Fall, Not an Evolution.
So far from teaching Evolution, the Bible teaches the very reverse. St. Paul declares, "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin. Thus death passed upon all men, because all are sinners." (Romans 5:12.) The Bible represents man as the masterpiece of mundane creation. God pronounced him "very good." Nor could we esteem it just that any but a perfect being should be placed on trial for life or death everlasting.

Not Two Creation Accounts.
Higher Critics claim that Genesis 2 is another account, written by a different person, giving a different order of creation—man created first, then trees, beasts, etc. To us this is foolishness. Moses, having described creation in its logical order, merely particularizes some of his previous statements. He declares (Genesis 2:4) that he has already described the generations or developments of things heavenly and earthly from "the beginning," before there was any plant life. He mentions that at that time there was no rain. He again assures us that man was God's last creation, to be the king of earth; and he proceeds to give an account of man's creation, so different from that of the lower animals and vegetation. Man was not evolved, but God's handiwork. He was not spirit, but flesh, formed of the dust of the ground, with the spirit of life common to all earthly creatures. The Hebrew reads, literally, "In his nostrils the breath of lives"—the breath or spirit of life common to all breathing creatures.

Man Originally Sexless.
The details of human creation imply that Adam lived some time alone and sexless. Some Bible students infer from the chronology that it was two years from Adam's creation until the expulsion from Eden under the death sentence. The cause for the division of Adam into two persons is stated: the earth was to be populated with a race of his species, and amongst all the creatures none was suitable as companion and mother of his offspring. Thus again is shown that Adam was distinctly different from apes and all other creatures under his control. He was in the likeness of his Creator. Other Scriptures show us that it is the Divine purpose that the sex quality in humanity shall be dropped.

Division of Adam into two parts.
The division of Adam into two parts left the headship with the male, but deprived him of some of his sympathetic qualities. His wife had less of the masculine and aggressive traits; but the two were perfectly adapted to each other and fulfilled each other's ideals. The fall from God's favor has affected both sexes, producing extremes of coarseness and effeminacy, and robbing the marriage relationship of its ideal happiness. The restitution or resurrection to be brought about by Messiah's Kingdom will not mean the restoration of sex perfections, but the gradual perfecting of each individual in the image of God.

By One Man's Disobedience.
Note the consistency of the Bible theory which necessitated the division of one man into male and female. God purposed that the entire race must proceed from the one man. He foresaw sin and provided for man's recovery. If two or more individuals had sinned, it would have required just as many redeemers, according to the Divine Law, "An eye for an eye," a man's life for a man's life. God intended only one glorious Redeemer, therefore the entire race sprang from one man—Adam—that "as by a man came death, by a man should come the resurrection of the dead."—1 Corinthians 15:21.

Second Adam and Second Eve.
Adam and Eve in some respects foreshadowed Christ and the Church. Jesus, personally, is the Great Savior, whose death constitutes the Ransom-price for the entire race. During His Millennial Reign He will give back earthly life to Adam and his posterity. But before regenerating the world God has arranged that first from the wound in Christ's side, figuratively, an Elect Church shall be formed, to be the second Eve, on the spirit plane, as He is the Second Adam. The Church will be the mother of humanity during the Millennium.

Adam created to be king of earth.
The Bible teaches the very reverse. St. Paul declares, "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin. Thus death passed upon all men, because all are sinners." (Romans 5:12.) The Bible represents man as the masterpiece of mundane creation. God pronounced him "very good." Nor could we esteem it just that any but a perfect being should be placed on trial for life or death everlasting.

SHUBERT

"The Merry Countess" is a revision of the well-known old play, with several new lyrics and with much new incident and dialogue. The piece is full of gaiety and merriment, and was especially enjoyable in the presentation of a new thought prison.

HOLLIS STREET

"The Perplexed Husband," a comedy in four acts, which is at the Hollis Street, is a play of dialogue in which the chief theme for satirization is woman suffrage. The humor and wit is highly entertaining and the piece was greatly enjoyed by a large house on the opening night.

PLYMOUTH

When George Arliss, who is starring in "Disraeli," began his Boston engagement at the Plymouth theatre, more than three months ago, the management had little idea that the play would supersede its already phenomenal New York success. It is the sort of play that not only appeals to all classes of theatregoers, but one that draws you to it time and again. In fact during its long run there have been many repeaters to see the play. Other cities are clamoring for it and because of previous contacts the play must soon terminate its present engagement. In short, this is your last chance to witness a play whose success has been unparalleled in the history of the American stage in the past decade. Therefore a word to the wise is sufficient. And don't overlook the important fact that "Disraeli" will positively not be seen in any other New England city. It's at the Plymouth theatre now or never. Let it be now. Remember that to miss seeing this play is a regret not easily forgotten. There is an established rule at the Plymouth theatre, which, by the way, houses the most fashionable playgoers, that the most careful and strict attention be given to all mail orders. It is safer for you to mail your check or money order for seats right now rather than experience the unpleasant discomfort of waiting in line at the box office. Make all checks payable to Fred E. Wright, Manager, Plymouth Theatre, Boston.

THE WORD HELL

A Little Book That Contains Some Startling Information.

A little book selling at only five cents, postpaid, is having a very wide circulation—running up into the millions. It contains some very startling information respecting the meaning of the word Hell. It claims to demonstrate, both from the Hebrew and the Greek of our Bible, that Hell is NOT a place of eternal torment, but merely another name for the TOMB, the GRAVE, the STATE OF DEATH. It affects to show that man was not redeemed from a far-off place of eternal torture, but quotes the Scriptures proving that he was REDEEMED from the GRAVE at the cost of his Redeemer's LIFE and that the Scriptural Hope, both for the Church and the World, is a resurrection hope based upon the death and resurrection of Jesus. The book is certainly worth the reading. The information it furnishes is certainly valuable, far beyond its trifling cost. Order it at once from the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

His Navy an Obsession with the German Emperor

No one can be long in the presence of the Emperor before realizing that the German navy is a still greater obsession with him than his army. His Majesty takes no little pride in the fact that the German fleet, inferior in every respect only to the British, is practically his own creation, since, when he ascended the throne, the German navy was entirely a negligible quantity. One of his most confidential advisers expressed the

The fire automobile truck was called out by telephone last Friday evening at 5.15 o'clock to a chimney fire at the residence of James Robie on Walnut street.

The high wind of Friday evening blew off a number of limbs from the trees about the town and for a time the fire alarm system was out of order, the wires being crossed and the bell struck a number of times.

Friday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. rooms in Central place a number of the fellows who camped at the outing department of the association at Harris pond last summer, held a reunion which was attended by many of the campers.

Friday evening at the Grand Army hall in Central place, the officers for the ensuing year of Col. William B. Greene Post, 100, G. A. R., were installed. General George A. Hoseley of Boston, commander of the department of Massachusetts, G. A. R., was the installing officer.

fear not so very long ago that the Emperor's devotion to the navy might lead to the lessening of his interest in the army, with possibly rather serious consequences. This is, however, not the case, and recent events seem to indicate that His Majesty has realized the fact that an all-powerful army is much more important to Germany than a fleet that can, after all, never hope to challenge the supremacy of Great Britain upon the high seas.—From The Strand.

BARNARD BLOCK, MAIN STREET

George Shaw returned to California
Tuesday after several months' stay with relatives in the village.

Mrs. B. McIntosh and Mrs. Margaret Spicer of Andover spent Thursday with friends in the village.

Burglary Reported

The house of William Shaw was broken into recently and a number of articles were stolen. The intruder gained entrance to the house by forcing the fastening on one of the back windows. Chief of Police Mears is investigating the break.

Barn Destroyed by Fire

The local hose company was summoned Tuesday morning about 8.30 o'clock to the barn of George P.
Pillsbury, and notwithstanding the call was answered promptly, the barn was totally destroyed.

The fire was started by the overturning of a lantern in the barn where Mr. Pillsbury was loading a load of hay. The flames quickly ignited the hay and the barn was almost instantly a mass of flames. Mr.
Pillsbury was severely burned while trying to rescue cattle and horses in the barn. By hard work the firemen succeeded in saving the house. One hundred tons of hay, nine cows and two horses were burned. The loss is estimated at $5000, partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Pillsbury will build a new barn
as soon as possible.

A Flashlight on the Situation

(Contributed by a Back Bay physician who likes to cultivate the muse occasionally.)

See the swashing suffragette,
When the vote she seeks to get;
Hear her hammer smash the glass,
Raising the tradesman class;
Anarchy and arson blent,
While the cohorts onward dash,
Law and order go to smash,
Smash, crash, crash, smash.

On ye strikers with a will,
Smash the loom and smash the mill;
Shout "no God, no master ours";
Scorn and fight all lawful powers;
Raise a mighty marching mob,
Keep willing workers from their job;
Then, if your persuasion fail,
Smash the worker's dinner pail,
Smash his dinner into hash.

Yellow journals, raise the yell,
Smash the trolley, smash the L;
Smash the price of bonds and stocks,
Rip up every safety-box;
Smash the boards' and bankers' ranks,
Don't omit the savings banks;
Old men's earnings, widows' cash,
Knock 'em in one general crash.
Crash, smash, smash, crash.

Politicians join the sound,
Keep your ears fast to the ground;
Smash the law and smash the courts;
Smash big business, smash the ports;
Smash the railroads and the ships,
Put success in deep eclipse;
Frightened horses need the task,
Run amuck and cut and slash.
Lash, slash, dash, crash.

Demagogues of every station,
Help the general conflagration;
Polling down your sole suggestion,
Building up's another question;
Make the fire roar and crackle,
Hasten on the grand debacle;
Forth with torch and powder dash,
Light the fuse and watch the flash,
Flash, crash, smash, crash.

ANDOVER LEADS LEAGUE

Clans Defeated. One More Victory
Will Give Championship to Andover

In one of the most bitterly contested games of the season, Andover defeated their dearest rivals, the Clans of Lawrence, at Glen Forest, last Saturday afternoon, 2 goals to 1.
Much depended upon the outcome of the game, the league leadership, and the locals played a brilliant game from start to finish. Their opponents were not far behind, but as in the first game at Andover, were compelled to accept defeat by the odd goal.

Despite the terrific gale there was a large attendance of spectators, An-dover's supporters making up a noisy contingent, which cheered their team on throughout the contest. The ground was in good condition and made fast playing possible.

Captain Page won the toss and Black kicked off for the Clans against the wind which blew a hurricane diagonally across the field. In spite of this disadvantage, however, they soon became dangerous and immediately made tracks for Andover's goal.
Cairnie and Clark had several good runs but Downs and Gordon were strong on the defense and prevented scoring. The Clans were not to be denied, however, and after fifteen minutes' play, Clark beat McArdle with a hot shot which he never had a chance to save. This reverse put new life in the game and Andover attacked vigorously. Munro saving in splendid style. The Clans returned to the attack and a rocket shot from the foot of Law was saved in brilliant fashion by McArdle. Andover again visited the Clans' goal and Munro made a remarkable save, barely getting the ball on his finger tips and turning it round the goal post.
The resultant corner kick was ineffective and Cargill and Jackson relieved.

Deyermund shortly after fastened on the ball in midfield and after a run up the wing, centered to Page who drove the ball into the net out of reach of Munro, tying the score.
From the kickoff the Clans made the Andover defense some trouble and Peter Cairnie tried "tackling low" with McArdle, Andover's goal keeper, who gave his supporters some unpleasantness by frequently leaving his goal. No scoring occurred, however, and the first half ended one goal each.

With the wind in their favor the Clans were expected to show up better, but Andover played a close passing game and were continually in their opponents' territory. It was apparent that Andover was determined to win and Deyermund sent in a shot which took Munro by surprise, the ball striking the ground in front of the goal keeper and bounding over his arms, landed in the net. It was a rather cheap goal, and was unfortunate for Munro, who had given up to this time a splendid exhibition of goal keeping.

From the kickoff Andover was back again and Page sent in a fine shot which Munro turned aside cleverly. The Clans retaliated and for ten minutes gave the Andover defense a busy time. McArdle, Downs and Gordon were in brilliant form and formed a stonewall defense that the Clans forwards could not pierce. Relief came and Andover visited Munro who was called upon to save several likely shots.
Page just missing by inches. The end came soon after with Andover in the lead 2 goals to 1, a fair indication of the relative merits of the teams.

Both goal keepers were in brilliant form and there was little to choose between them. At back, Andover had the advantage, both Downs and Gordon tackling and kicking strongly and surely. It speaks well for the Andover management that two such backs could be found to take the places of Rae and Ross. Both halfback divisions put in lots of hard work, Stirling and Dakers breaking up many promising runs. McIntosh and Renny were also prominent.
Forward two teams were evenly matched, although Page outplayed Alec Black, who although very speedy lacks dash. Deyermund and Gordon on the extremities had many fine runs and Skea and Doherty were hard workers. "Law" the crack outside of the Clans, was well looked after by Stirling and was seldom dangerous.

Andover's victory makes them the favorite for the championship. One more game remains to be played with the Lawrence Olympics. The teams were:

THISTLES MAKE GOOD RECORD

The Andover Thistles, a junior soccer football team organized early this season, has made a good record.
The club is composed of youngsters and contains several promising players. They have given several good exhibitions and although their first games resulted in defeats they went through the season with four victories, three defeats, and one tie.

They purpose entering the Marshall Cup competition in the spring. The pace will probably be too fast for them, but the experience of playing against senior teams ought to do them good.

Their record is as follows:

Thistles	2,	No. Chelmsford	4
